Remotely manage ad hoc print and mail jobs

Remote printing made easy

The cost of ad hoc mail is overlooked in most organizations. Simple steps can lead to considerable savings through consolidation, automation, and postal discounts.

- More print volume
- Provide online value-added services
- Enhance efficiency and respond more quickly to customer requests
- Increase profitability with postal discounts and mail optimisation

Efficiently manage remote printing

If you need to manage your print jobs remotely or are a service provider looking to increase your print volume, Ad Hoc Mail provides a valuable opportunity. With the increasing trend in home-based work, being able to properly manage multiple remote printing jobs can help reduce costs and increase revenues.

Convenient print services

The Ad Hoc Mail solution allows customers to print from a Windows environment, via the internet, 24/7. They can preview results, add attachments, and submit documents directly or via an approval queue into a remotely located print room.

Automate and optimise

The remote print room will receive customers' pre-approved, print-ready jobs, ready for use in upstream production processes. This allows both customers and service providers to reduce overhead and other costs, to maximise revenues.

Customer experience

Customers simply print; only now, it's done remotely. Using a standard print driver and web portal to submit and view print jobs, the procedure remains seamless and familiar. Email notifications are automatically sent at every stage of the process. This no-hassle system means that customers are informed and confident, while service providers are routinely communicating on their jobs' progress.

"55% of PSPs cited their ability to increase sales as their biggest concern."^{*}
